New and improved! Packshots have never been easier

The colour is carefully selected, light grey and in gloss 10-15 to prevent any reflection from lights.

The original Packshot body form has been updated, and we are now ready to hand you the brand-new and extended version: Packshot! Several new features have been added to the model to improve the user experience and the functionality of the body form.

This is the media between a bust and a mannequin. Packshot is specially designed to neutral photo shooting of clothing for catalogues, web-shops or wherever you would like to show your designs in a three-dimensional way.

The design offer a straightforward position - but still with details of a body inside the clothes. Perfectly shaped body parts enhance and fulfill the exposure of the designs, and support the curves. These body forms are developed to easy dress and undress, and have extended arms and legs to support the clothing.

A new feature for easier assembling is that the arms have been given magnets. The magnets ensure an easy handling and assembling of the body form.

The improvements means even greater functionalities and user-friendliness. Please note that the arms should be attached carefully as the magnets are strong.
